“However, those who do not attend group lessons have a smaller share of the joy of the heart. They also grow more slowly. Please always let them attend group lessons.”

Online Group Considerations and Guidelines

As we continue our online journey of education, it is important that group classes serve multiple purposes:

- To build community through joint music making
- To instill and solidify instrument skills through review
- To explore a wide range of music education areas that enhance instrument growth, i.e. theory, music history, composition/improvisation

We recognize as students' online learning has exponentially multiplied this is an adjustment for all. With this in mind, we have shortened group lesson times until in person learning can resume.

Group lesson guidelines:

1. Regular attendance is expected. Please consider over committing your child with too many extracurricular activities.
2. The student's instrument should be tuned prior to class.
3. For those students assigned to the 5:00pm group classes, parental involvement is expected.
4. Ensemble Class members should have a music stand, pencil and all music ready for each class.
5. Please help to limit home distractions by having the student participate using the largest screen possible and limiting home distractions during group time.
